Understanding the OER Support Form for Platoon Leaders

The OER support form serves as a critical tool in the Officer Evaluation Report process, designed to capture the detailed performance and potential of officers, including platoon leaders. This form enables raters and senior raters to gather structured input and observations about an officer's leadership capabilities, accomplishments, and areas for development. For platoon leaders, who manage small units and execute tactical missions, the support form provides a framework to document their unique contributions and challenges. Understanding the purpose and structure of this form is vital for accurate and meaningful evaluations. It ensures that leadership qualities, operational effectiveness, and professional growth are clearly communicated within the Army's performance management system.

The Role of the Platoon Leader in the OER Process

Platoon leaders are responsible for leading soldiers directly and ensuring mission accomplishment at the tactical level. Their leadership impacts training, discipline, morale, and operational success. The OER support form reflects this by focusing on leadership attributes, decision-making skills, and the ability to inspire and manage soldiers. Because the platoon leader is often the first line of command, their evaluation is critical for career progression and identifying future leaders in the Army. The support form is therefore tailored to emphasize these leadership and tactical competencies specifically.

Key Components of the OER Support Form

The OER support form includes several key sections designed to capture comprehensive information on a platoon leader's performance. These components work together to create a holistic view of the officer's capabilities and contributions. Understanding each section helps ensure the form is completed accurately and effectively.

Performance Objectives

This section outlines the specific goals assigned to the platoon leader during the evaluation period. Objectives typically relate to mission tasks, training milestones, and leadership responsibilities. Clear and measurable performance objectives enable evaluators to assess whether the platoon leader met, exceeded, or fell short of expectations.

Duty Description

The duty description succinctly summarizes the platoon leader's role, responsibilities, and scope of command. It provides context for evaluators by detailing the size of the unit, mission type, and leadership challenges faced. An accurate duty description is essential to frame the evaluation properly.

Leadership Attributes and Competencies

This critical section assesses the platoon leader's demonstration of Army leadership attributes such as character, presence, intellect, and leads. It also evaluates competencies including leading others, developing the environment, and achieving results. Detailed and specific examples should support these assessments.

Potential Assessment

Here, evaluators provide their judgment on the platoon leader's potential for higher responsibility and future assignments. This forward-looking section is important for career management and identifying officers who are ready for advancement.

How to Complete an OER Support Form for a Platoon Leader

Completing an OER support form requires accuracy, clarity, and a thorough understanding of the platoon leader's performance. Following a structured approach ensures that the evaluation is fair and comprehensive.

Gathering Relevant Information

Start by collecting key data points such as mission results, training achievements, leadership examples, and feedback from peers and subordinates. Documenting specific accomplishments and challenges helps build a strong foundation for the evaluation.

Writing Clear and Concise Entries

Each section should be completed with straightforward language, avoiding jargon or ambiguous statements. Use action verbs and quantifiable results where possible to emphasize the platoon leader's impact. For example, instead of "led training," specify "led 12 tactical training exercises resulting in 15% improvement in unit readiness."

Maintaining Objectivity and Professionalism

Ensure that all comments are factual and supported by evidence. Avoid personal opinions or unsubstantiated praise. The goal is to provide evaluators with an accurate and unbiased picture of the platoon leader's performance.

Examples of Effective OER Support Form Entries

Illustrative examples help clarify how to document a platoon leader's achievements and competencies on the OER support form. Below are sample entries that demonstrate clarity and relevance.

Performance Objective Example

"Successfully led a 40-soldier infantry platoon during five major field exercises, achieving a 98% mission success rate and enhancing unit cohesion through rigorous training and mentorship."

Leadership Attribute Example

"Exhibited exceptional decisiveness under pressure during live-fire exercises, maintaining soldier safety while accomplishing all training objectives ahead of schedule."

Potential Assessment Example

"Demonstrates strong potential for company command and staff positions due to consistent excellence in leadership, tactical acumen, and communication skills."

Common Mistakes to Avoid in OER Support Forms

Errors in completing OER support forms can undermine the evaluation's effectiveness and fairness. Recognizing common pitfalls helps maintain the quality of the documentation.

- Using vague or generalized statements without evidence
- Failing to align performance objectives with actual duties
- Including irrelevant personal opinions or biased remarks
- Overlooking key accomplishments or challenges faced
- Neglecting to update the form regularly throughout the rating period

Best Practices for Platoon Leaders in OER Documentation

Platoon leaders can take proactive steps to ensure their OER support forms accurately reflect their performance and potential. Adhering to best practices improves the quality of evaluations and supports career advancement.

Maintain a Performance Journal

Document significant events, achievements, and leadership challenges as they occur throughout the rating period. This practice provides a reliable source of information when completing the support form.

Solicit Feedback Regularly

Engage with peers, subordinates, and superiors to gather performance feedback. Incorporating diverse perspectives enhances the completeness of the OER support form.

Align Entries with Army Leadership Requirements

Ensure that all documented performance aligns with the Army leadership framework and evaluation criteria. This alignment demonstrates awareness of standards and commitment to professional development.

Review and Edit Thoroughly

Proofread the completed form for clarity, accuracy, and consistency. Corrections improve the professionalism and credibility of the evaluation.

Mastering the OER: A Platoon Leader's Guide to Effective Support

Introduction: Understanding the Importance of OERs and Their Impact

Officer Evaluation Reports (OERs) are far more than just pieces of paperwork; they are crucial instruments shaping the careers and development of officers. For a platoon leader, mastering the OER process isn't simply a matter of administrative compliance; it's a fundamental leadership responsibility. Effective OER support directly impacts the growth, morale, and overall effectiveness of your platoon. A well-written and thoughtfully supported OER reflects not just the officer's performance, but also the platoon leader's ability to mentor, assess, and develop their team. Neglecting this process can lead to missed opportunities for advancement, decreased morale, and a less effective fighting force. This ebook equips you with the knowledge and tools to excel in this critical area.

Chapter 1: The OER Support Process: A Step-by-Step Guide

The OER support process is not a single event but a continuous cycle that begins long before the rating period even starts. Successful OER support requires proactive engagement and consistent communication. This chapter will break down the process into manageable steps:

1. Pre-Rating Period Preparation:

Establish Clear Expectations: Communicate clearly defined performance standards and expectations at the beginning of the rating period. This ensures your soldiers understand what constitutes success and how their performance will be evaluated.

Individualized Development Plans (IDPs): Collaboratively create IDPs with each officer, outlining specific goals, training needs, and opportunities for professional growth. These plans serve as a roadmap for development throughout the rating period.

Regular Check-ins: Schedule regular one-on-one meetings to monitor progress, provide feedback, and address any challenges. These meetings should be proactive and focused on development, not just performance review.

2. During the Rating Period:

Document Performance: Maintain detailed records of significant accomplishments, challenges overcome, and areas requiring improvement. Keep meticulous notes from meetings and observations, ensuring they are objective and specific.

Provide Timely Feedback: Deliver regular, constructive feedback throughout the rating period, avoiding surprises at the end. Timely feedback allows officers to adjust their performance and learn from mistakes.

Identify and Address Weaknesses: Proactively identify areas needing improvement and work with the officer to develop strategies for addressing them. This demonstrates your commitment to their growth and development.

3. Post-Rating Period:

Review and Discuss the OER: Once the OER is completed, thoroughly review it with the officer, ensuring accuracy and addressing any discrepancies. This collaborative process fosters trust and transparency.

Provide Support for Appeals: If necessary, provide support and guidance throughout the appeals process. This involves providing additional documentation and testimony to support the officer's case.

Continued Mentorship: Even after the OER is finalized, continue your mentorship to support the officer's continued professional development.

Chapter 2: Crafting Effective Support Forms: Practical Examples and Templates

This chapter focuses on the practical aspects of writing supportive and accurate OERs. It provides templates and examples to aid you in providing constructive feedback and documenting performance effectively. The key to effective support forms lies in providing specific examples, using the AR 623-105 as a guide and focusing on both strengths and areas for improvement.

Example Scenario:

Strength: "2LT Smith consistently demonstrates initiative and exceptional problem-solving skills. During the recent field exercise, she identified a critical communication breakdown and implemented a solution that significantly improved our platoon's operational effectiveness. This resulted in a 20% increase in efficiency."

Area for Improvement: "While 2LT Jones possesses strong technical skills, she needs to improve her communication skills, specifically in delegating tasks effectively. We will focus on this in the coming months through targeted training and mentorship."

Chapter 3, 4, 5, & 6: Conducting Meaningful Counseling Sessions, Navigating Difficult Situations, Ensuring Fairness and Accuracy, & Post-OER Follow-Up

These chapters delve into advanced topics. Chapter 3 details best practices for effective counseling, ensuring open communication and constructive feedback. Chapter 4 addresses challenges such as addressing performance issues and managing conflicts. Chapter 5 focuses on maintaining objectivity and fairness in evaluations, while Chapter 6 emphasizes the importance of continued mentorship and professional development beyond the OER process. These chapters provide strategies for managing complex situations and ensuring that the OER process remains a positive and constructive experience for both the leader and the soldier.

Conclusion: Sustaining Effective OER Support and Maximizing the Impact on Your Platoon's Success

Effective OER support isn't a one-time task but a continuous process that underpins a strong and effective platoon. By consistently applying the principles outlined in this ebook, you will not only ensure fair and accurate evaluations but also foster a culture of growth and development within your unit. Remember, your role extends beyond simply completing the paperwork; you are a mentor, a coach, and a leader shaping the careers of the future. This commitment to professional development will directly translate into a more effective and highly motivated platoon.

oer support form example platoon leader: Army Leadership and the Profession (ADP 6-22) Headquarters Department of the Army, 2019-10-09 ADP 6-22 describes enduring concepts of leadership through the core competencies and attributes required of leaders of all cohorts and all organizations, regardless of mission or setting. These principles reflect decades of experience and validated scientific knowledge. An ideal Army leader serves as a role model through strong intellect, physical presence, professional competence, and moral character. An Army leader is able and willing to act decisively, within superior leaders' intent and purpose, and in the organization's best interests. Army leaders recognize that organizations, built on mutual trust and confidence, accomplish missions. Every member of the Army, military or civilian, is part of a team and functions in the role of leader and subordinate. Being a good subordinate is part of being an effective leader. Leaders do not just lead subordinates--they also lead other leaders. Leaders are not limited to just those designated by position, rank, or authority.

oer support form example platoon leader: Army Leadership Department of the Army, 2012-09-15 Competent leaders of character are necessary for the Army to meet the challenges in the dangerous and complex security environment we face. As the keystone leadership manual for the United States Army, FM 6-22 establishes leadership doctrine, the fundamental principles by which Army leaders act to accomplish their mission and care for their people. FM 6-22 applies to officers, warrant officers, noncommissioned officers, and enlisted Soldiers of all Army components, and to Army civilians. From Soldiers in basic training to newly commissioned officers, new leaders learn how to lead with this manual as a basis. FM 6-22 is prepared under the direction of the Army Chief of Staff. It defines leadership, leadership roles and requirements, and how to develop leadership within the Army. It outlines the levels of leadership as direct, organizational, and strategic, and describes how to lead successfully at each level. It establishes and describes the core leader competencies that facilitate focused feedback, education, training, and development across all leadership levels. It reiterates the Army Values. FM 6-22 defines how the Warrior Ethos is an integral part of every Soldier's life. It incorporates the leadership qualities of self-awareness and adaptability and describes their critical impact on acquiring additional knowledge and improving in the core leader competencies while operating in constantly changing operational environments. In line with evolving Army doctrine, FM 6-22 directly supports the Army's capstone manuals, FM 1 and FM 3-0, as well as keystone manuals such as FM 5-0, FM 6-0, and FM 7-0. FM 6-22 connects Army doctrine to joint doctrine as expressed in the relevant joint doctrinal publications, JP 1 and JP 3-0. As outlined in FM 1, the Army uses the shorthand expression of BE-KNOW-DO to concentrate on key factors of leadership. What leaders DO emerges from who they are (BE) and what they KNOW. Leaders are prepared throughout their lifetimes with respect to BE-KNOW-DO so they will be able to act at a moment's notice and provide leadership for whatever challenge they may face. FM 6-22 expands on the principles in FM 1 and describes the character attributes and core competencies required of contemporary leaders. Character is based on the attributes central to a leader's make-up, and competence comes from how character combines with knowledge, skills, and behaviors to result in leadership. Inextricably linked to the inherent qualities of the Army leader, the concept of BE-KNOW-DO represents specified elements of character, knowledge, and behavior described here in FM 6-22.

oer support form example platoon leader: Lying to Ourselves Leonard Wong, Stephen J. Gerras, Strategic Studies Institute, 2015-12-22 One of the hallmarks of a true profession is its ability to assess and regulate itself, especially with respect to adherence to its foundational ethos. Such self-examination is difficult and often causes discomfort within the profession. Nonetheless, it is absolutely necessary to enable members of the profession to render the service for which the profession exists. U.S. military professionals have never shied away from this responsibility, and they do not today, as evidenced by this riveting monograph. Discussing dishonesty in the Army profession is a topic that will undoubtedly make many readers uneasy. It is, however, a concern that must be addressed to better the Army profession. Through extensive discussions with officers and thorough and sound analysis, Drs. Leonard Wong and Stephen Gerras make a compelling argument for the Army to introspectively examine how it might be inadvertently encouraging the very behavior it deems unacceptable.

oer support form example platoon leader: Army Leadership (ADRP 6-22) Department Army, 2012-09-28 Army doctrine reference publication (ADRP) 6-22 expands on the leadership principles established in Army doctrine publication (ADP) 6-22. ADRP 6-22 describes the Army's view of leadership, outlines the levels of leadership (direct, organizational, and strategic), and describes the attributes and core leader competencies across all levels. The principal audience for ADRP 6-22 is all leaders, military and civilian. Trainers and educators throughout the Army will also use this publication. Commanders, staffs, and subordinates ensure their decisions and actions comply with applicable United States, international, and, in some cases, host-nation laws and regulations. Commanders at all levels ensure their Soldiers operate in accordance with the law of war and the rules of engagement (see Field Manual [FM] 27-10). ADRP 6-22 uses joint terms where applicable. Selected joint and Army terms and definitions appear in both the glossary and the text. For definitions shown in the text, the term is italicized and the number of the proponent publication follows the definition. The use of the term influence throughout this publication reflects the definition of common English usage the act or power of producing an effect without apparent exertion of force or direct exercise of command, as distinct from the usage outlined in FM 3-13. It is contrary to law for DOD to undertake operations intended to influence a domestic audience; nothing in this publication recommends activities in contravention of this law. ADRP 6-22 applies to the Active Army, Army National Guard/Army National Guard of the United States, and United States Army Reserve unless otherwise stated.

Headquarters Department of the Army, 2019-09-27 Training prepares the Army to conduct prompt and sustained operations across multiple domains. In concert with ADP 3-0, Operations, ADP 7-0 further articulates the Army's foundational training doctrine as leaders and units prepare to conduct unified land operations. The factors in the logic chart on page iv combined with the changing nature of technology and continuously developing asymmetric threats make training challenging. The principal audience for this publication is Army commanders and staffs. Commanders and staffs of Army headquarters serving as joint task force or multinational headquarters should refer to applicable joint or multinational doctrine concerning joint or multinational planning.

Kendall D. Gott, 2006 Few lessons are as prevalent in military history as is the adage that tanks don't perform well in cities. The notion of deliberately committing tanks to urban combat is anathema to most. In Breaking the Mold: Tanks in the Cities, Ken Gott disproves that notion with a timely series of five case studies from World War II to the present war in Iraq. This is not a parochial or triumphant study. These cases demonstrate that tanks must do more than merely arrive on the battlefield to be successful in urban combat. From Aachen in 1944 to Fallujah in 2004, the absolute need for specialized training and the use of combined arms at the lowest tactical levels are two of the most salient lessons that emerge from this study. When properly employed, well-trained and well-supported units led by tanks are decisive in urban combat. The reverse also is true. Chechen rebels taught the Russian army and the world a brutal lesson in Grozny about what happens when armored units are poorly led, poorly trained, and cavalierly employed in a city. The case studies in this monograph are high-intensity battles in conflicts ranging from limited interventions to major combat operations. It would be wrong to use them to argue for the use of tanks in every urban situation. As the intensity of the operation decreases, the 2nd and 3rd order effects of using tanks in cities can begin to outweigh their utility. The damage to infrastructure caused by their sheer weight and size is just one example of what can make tanks unsuitable for every mission. Even during peace operations, however, the ability to employ tanks and other heavy armored vehicles can be crucial. Breaking the Mold provides an up-to-date analysis of the utility of tanks and heavy armored forces in urban combat. The U.S. Army will increasingly conduct combat operations in urban terrain, and it will be necessary to understand what it takes to employ tanks to achieve success in that battlefield environment.

oer support form example platoon leader: Operations (ADP 3-0) Headquarters Department of the Army, 2019-09-27 ADP 3-0, Operations, constitutes the Army's view of how to conduct prompt and sustained operations across multiple domains, and it sets the foundation for developing other principles, tactics, techniques, and procedures detailed in subordinate doctrine publications. It articulates the Army's operational doctrine for unified land operations. ADP 3-0 accounts for the uncertainty of operations and recognizes that a military operation is a human undertaking. Additionally, this publication is the foundation for training and Army education system curricula related to unified land operations. The principal audience for ADP 3-0 is all members of the profession of arms. Commanders and staffs of Army headquarters serving as joint task force (JTF) or multinational headquarters should also refer to applicable joint or multinational doctrine concerning the range of military operations and joint or multinational forces. Trainers and educators throughout the Army will use this publication as well.

oer support form example platoon leader: Stop Talking, Start Communicating: Counterintuitive Secrets to Success in Business and in Life, with a foreword by Martha Mendoza Geoffrey Tumlin, 2013-07-19 PLAY DUMB. BE BORING. DON'T SOLVE PROBLEMS. AND ABOVE ALL, DON'T BE YOURSELF. Not exactly what you'd expect to hear from a communication expert, but these counterintuitive strategies are precisely what we need to interact productively and meaningfully in today's digital world. Our overreliance on quick, cheap, and easy means of staying connected is eroding our communication skills. Speed steamrolls thoughtfulness; self-expression trumps restraint. Errors and misunderstandings increase. And our relationships suffer. With startling insights and a dash of humor, Stop Talking, Start Communicating combines scientific research with real-world strategies to deliver a proven approach to more effective communication. Only Geoffrey Tumlin could write a book about a serious problem--our mounting communication deficiencies--and make me laugh and learn all the way through it. Witty, smart, and 100 percent accurate, Stop Talking, Start Communicating points the way to a better conversational future. -- Tina Morris, managing director at Standard & Poor's An elegantly analytical, accessible, and enjoyable guide to improving interpersonal communication, Stop Talking, Start Communicating is a key resource for anyone who wants to be a difference-making leader, manager, or team member. -- Eduardo Sanchez, deputy chief medical officer of the American Heart Association
